Dear Parents and Carers

This week in the Deaf Resource Base, we had our second workshop for our new project 'Deaf Perspectives - Past, Present & Future'. The students are researching, interviewing, filming and editing for this project with the highlight being an afternoon matinee where family will be invited to an exclusive viewing to see the students' films. We are working alongside Northgate High School in Ipswich on this project. Yesterday was the first opportunity for all the students to meet each other and use the equipment that they will be using throughout the project.

All the students interacted really well throughout the session and demonstrated exemplary behaviour which they can all be really proud of! We are all super excited for the next workshop, watch this space for updates.

Shakespeare Schools Festival

We are delighted to be taking part in the Coram Shakespeare Schools Festival again this year. 35 of our talented students will have the chance to perform a classic Shakespearian play but with a twist as the current theme is Shakespeare Reimagined, meaning that we can put our own King Edward VI twist on it!

The play this year is Measure for Measure; auditions are well under way with the final selection process taking place next week. The festival this year will be taking place at The Junction in Cambridge and tickets will be on sale in January, direct from The Junction.

Vienna is out of control. Its ruler, the Duke, hands over power to the morally upright Angelo and pretends to leave. In reality the Duke, disguised as a friar, remains in Vienna to see whether Angelo is successful. Over-zealous Angelo instantly imposes the death sentence on Claudio for getting his girlfriend, Juliet, pregnant out of wedlock...what will become of this heartbreaking situation? Will the Duke return and save the day?
